BEAUTY RETURNS to the Carmel River two-fold as the recent rains bring once again a new flow through Carmel Valley to the sea. Taking advantage of the early flow of water to toss a few stones into the stream is Mary Yohman of Canada Way, Carmel Valley. Mary took a brief break from her duties at Monterey Savings in the Mid-Valley Shopping Center to admire the scenic view created by the slight flow. ## LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Gentlemen:

We on Schulte Road refuse to accept the Peninsula's refuse! If the CVPOA directors are so keen on the idea, let them push for a site on the street where they live.

If one were to set out in search of the worst possible site for a garbage transfer yard, Schulte Road would be it, for the following reasons:

(1) A lot of little kids must walk Schulte Road to and from nearby Carmelo School and to catch the bus to Middle School. There is no school bus service on Schulte. These youngsters will be in extreme danger constantly.

(2) There is a blind curve on Schulte just before the site entrance, rendering it impossible to see trucks pulling out. How many smashups resulting in injuries and deaths will there be?

(3) At the entrance site, the road narrows to a one-lane bridge creating a bottleneck which will be intolerable if trucks are turning in and out seven days a week.

(4) The site is on a low shelf at a narrow place in the river, subject to flooding and bank washout.

(5) Schulte Road is a farm residential area, not at all acceptable for a commercial operation, "quasi-public" be damned.

(6) The intersection of Schulte and Carmel Valley Roads is inadequate to handle constant truck traffic, traffic that is planned far in excess of that claimed.

As usual, CVPOA directors have made a personal decision in ignorance of the facts. This isn't a scheme to handle just Carmel Valley garbage. Elio Chiappe may be the president of Carmel Valley Disposal Service, but he is also a major stockholder and executive in The John Roscelli Corporation (which collects Carmel's garbage). They also collect in the Big Sur coastal area. Chiappe and George Roscelli jointly own and manage these corporations. All their daily garbage collections will be trucked to the Schulte Road site. And being astute business men, one can well bet that these owners will make their compacting machinery available to the other garbage collectors on the Peninsula.

To compound the aggravation, the public is invited to cart their trash to the site any day of the week. Add to that the traffic of the planned County equipment yard on Schulte and you'll have more big wheels to squash more little kids than we exhausted parents can comfortably produce. There will be a constant flow of trucks, increasing traffic far above the forty per cent jump claimed, closer to 400 per cent! Schulte Road will become the dump of the entire Peninsula. Why drive way out past Marina when near-by Carmel Valley will accept your trash?

It's damn strange that CVPOA directors are so interested in the economic well-being of these garbage companies. To claim that a refuse site in the valley is needed is ludicrous. Needed by whom? Unless there's hanky-panky somewhere, the only ones to benefit are the privately owned garbage companies. They're in business to make a buck so let's not be so ridiculous as to label theirs a quasi-public operation. Let them put their plant at their corporation yard in Sand City. Or truck Carmel's garbage to Odello Land West which the city fathers of Carmel were so generous to spend taxpayers' money to help purchase.

Typically, this scheme is being talked small to gain approval but is being planned BIG. If approved, far more than stinking garbage from Carmel Valley will be dumped, compacted, then trucked out in huge double trailer rigs. Once in operation there will be no stopping it.

No sir, we don't buy the double talk. There's a tie in here somewhere to the County's plans for an equipment yard. They don't need ten acres for that so they hope it's cut and dried to spin off over four acres for garbage, else why has the Board of Supervisors already declared the garbage companies to be quasi-public? It smacks of steam roller tactics for sure. If they succeed, the stink raised will be from more than garbage.

Why haven't we heard a word from the valley environmentalists on this one?

Schulte Road is a farm and residential area and any attempt to turn it into a garbage dump and equipment yard will not be tolerated. Bill Brown and his CVPOA cohorts do some strange things, but they aren't going to get away with their strange pushing of a scheme that will endanger the lives of little kids because they somehow think that squeezing garbage into compact size is a necessity; this from a group that fights everything else that anyone wants to do in the valley.

Incidentally, Bill Brown's house has a nice empty field right next door, ideal for a garbage factory if that's what he wants.

JOHN G. DARCH

Dear Editor:

What right does Bill Brown or the Carmel Valley Property Owner's Association have to endorse so wholeheartedly an operation such as the proposed Monterey County Corporation Yard and the Carmel Valley Disposal Service refuse compaction and transfer plant when almost 100 per cent of the property owners living on Schulte Road are against both. A service yard has been turned down by petition twice before; once on this same location, the other across the road, therefore, why again?

These operations are opposed because of added traffic posing a threat to children, little 5 and 6 year olds walking to and from school, noise, odor pollution, lowering of property values (who would knowingly purchase property next to either), and unknown damage to what is a dry riverbed seven months a year.

The County admitted to between 40 to 60 entrances and exits a day. The compaction plant is to receive all refuse and garbage collected daily from Big Sur, Carmel, and Carmel Valley (see CV Outlook, Aug. 2, 1973), 70 tons a day with a projection of 500 tons in 10 years, plus being open weekends to receive trash, etc., from anyone wishing to haul their own.

Both these operations should have a central, easily accessible location which the proposed Schulte Road site is not.

Why not on the proposed Canada de la Segunda Road which is a direct route to Marina, to be limited access and all undeveloped property. If Segunda is not built before the Hatton Canyon Freeway, these operations should be located at the mouth of the Valley. The greatest amount of refuse is not from the Valley but from the more populous areas and it does seem rather ridiculous to haul it four miles up the Valley then four miles back down the Valley before getting started to Marina.

Sincerely,
MARY SHOREY

Dear Editor:

Please put this "open letter" in the Outlook--am sending a duplicate to the Commission.

Monterey County Planning Commission:

Dear Sir:

This letter is in the form of a request. A request that the Planning Board make a thorough investigation on the impact of letting industry into Carmel Valley.

After all, the Carmel Valley is one of the most beautiful places on the Monterey Peninsula, and one of the few places left for people to look for a home site away from the city. If one industry is let in--where do you draw the line on more being allowed in?

As to Schulte Road, it is too narrow, and the bridge is also too narrow and a couple hundred people live on the lower Schulte Road. The traffic is already bad and add a garbage truck about every eight minutes and we will have a real problem.

Also add a truck each eight minutes to the Valley Highway which is mostly two lane, plus the old folks from the Home just above Schulte Road, and we will have a very bad problem.

I do not see how anyone could remotely consider wanting all these additional trucks on our Valley road. Some I am sure will vote for it because of money; but on a long range view I am sure you must see that the Valley is no place for a garbage compaction plant of any type.

Sand City is an industrial city and the people and businesses there would surely not mind the plant being there, as the city has a dump there now and so many industries that one more would not even be noticed.

Also the people on or near Schulte Road have invested many thousands of dollars in homes--homes too valuable to have the devaluation cut by having this situation.

Garbage has always been put in a non-productive out of the way place, and I am sure that all the new homes that will be built on and around Schulte Road in the next few years is worth far more in taxes than the saving of a little gas to take the trucks someplace else.

Please think of us living here on Schulte Road, and also the danger to the children and the old folks from the Home who use Schulte Road as a safe place to take their daily walks. There are a great number of children on this road daily.

A very unhappy resident of Schulte Road.

EMMETT SPENCER and WIFE

Dear Editor:

Your excellent presentation of the proposed refuse transfer station on Schulte Road makes points that cannot be faulted. The station is necessary and even desirable from both a monetary and environmental standpoint, obviously. Also obvious is the fact that it must be located "somewhere". What is not so obvious, at least to me, is why it must be located in anyone's residential district.

Would the 15 to 20 trucks now going daily to the dump all be coming to the Schulte Road station? If so, this makes between 30 and 40 trucks coming and going daily. Add the seven day week service, multiply, and there would be as many as 280 trips per week of collectors' trucks alone. The report does not state how many of the 25 ton trailers would be making the run to the dump, nor how often.

To add to the enormous traffic increase on the road to the site might be the private individuals saving the trip they now make to the dump with refuse the disposal company does not now pick up. (This would go to the environmentally sound aspect of the proposal).

As stated in an earlier report, Schulte Road residents will not like this proposal, nor would any other residential area in the valley. I submit an operation of this sort should be located on land directly accessible to the highway and going thru no residential street. Surely there is vacant land of this description that might be made available if it isn't already, such as a small amount of the undeveloped land slated for a subdivision (that I can see from my Schulte Road) window on the north side of the highway.

In answer to the inferred idea of "somewhere, so why not Schulte?", it should be pointed out that on Schulte now are two recreation parks that already cause traffic problems, particularly in view of our one-way bridge, all during the summer, fall and spring months. This on a road heavily populated with children, horses, dogs, hikers and strollers from Carmel Manor, and bicyclers.

One last consideration is the County corporation yard that is also proposed for Schulte Road. I submit life in this area would shortly be of very poor quality indeed.

Perhaps to you the merits do outweigh the detrimental aspects of the proposal, but that is no doubt due to the objectivity so easily achieved by anyone who does not live on Schulte Road, nor wishing to maintain the quality of life on Schulte Road that caused us to buy land and homes here in the first place.

Thank you for the forum.

A COLUMN

THANKSGIVING traditionally is a time when we pause and give thanks for our fortunes as being free Americans. It is also a time to join with our families and friends to enjoy the traditional feast and to reflect our love for our neighbors and our country.

This year, with Thanksgiving falling on the OUTLOOK's regular publishing day, and to enable us to reflect our thoughts on the Day of Thanks, we are publishing our Thanksgiving message to our readers a week early.

We received a timely and thought provoking prayer recently, released by the California Feature Service, and we hope our readers will enjoy sharing its message with us.

THANKSGIVING, 1973

Nations are in conflict. Truces are called and broken. Russia and China eye each other across their common border, wondering whether, and when, to unleash the atom.

We thank thee, oh Lord, for being generous in our weakness, and giving us men and women of good will and strength to seek the peace and mutual respect you so want this world to have.

Our air is polluted and our rivers befouled. Our resources dwindle under our incessant demands for more of the comfortable, pleasant material things of life.

We thank thee, oh Lord, for being the Creator of so much richness and magnificence, for providing us our daily bread if only we will be sensible about the distribution of the slices.

This nation is stunned by revelations of stupidity, greed, intrigue, dishonesty in the higher reaches of government.

We thank thee, oh Lord, for being the arbiter of our souls; for giving us the decency to be offended by indecency; for granting us the ability to live good and honorable lives if only we will utilize that ability.

In all our darkness, however, we still find light. We go to the moon and discover breathtaking evidence of your almighty greatness. We do, if feebly, pursue your inspiration to help our fellow men in need and illness. And because of you we can cherish hope.

We thank thee, oh Lord, for being.

The year 1973 has indeed been a tumultuous one for not only we in the United States but for the peoples of the entire world. The Middle East War, inflation, energy crisis, Watergate, the Nixon tapes, Southeast Asia and natural disasters to name just a few.

But, as we pause and reflect on the confusing activities which have occurred these past months, let us also count our blessings for our health, our freedom, our loved ones, and, our God-given right to assemble on this day of thanks.

School Board explains possible switch

By BOB KENNEDY

Carmel Unified School District trustees continue to hold study sessions in efforts to determine the future needs of Carmel High and Middle Schools.

In its latest meeting, the Board of Education met informally with faculty personnel at the High School Tuesday at lunch, and outlined what had been accomplished so far.

Pamela Smith, president of the board, explained to the luncheon audience the board of education and the school district is attempting to extract from the faculties of the two schools, ideas, thoughts and possibilities of exchanging schools or renovating the present high school.

"The crux of our whole problem is what to do now," Mrs. Smith explained. "What we need is long-range planning for a first-rate high school. We anticipate a growth in the district," she continued, "the question is whether it will be in the next year, the next five years or the next 10 years."

Mrs. Smith indicated that of all the alternatives the district has studied, the exchanging of the two schools, remodeling the existing high school for the Middle School, and constructing new buildings for additional classroom space at the middle school to house the high school student body was the most reasonable answer.

Mrs. Smith explained it was the board's feelings to proceed with plans for a rough estimate on the switching of the two schools.

Tuesday's meeting with the faculty was primarily for the purpose of encouraging educators to supply input and make their needs known to the board of education. Board members explained that with suggestions from the instructors, the architects could then determine what improvements would be needed at the High School to convert it into a Middle School, and prepare a cost estimate for improvements and repairs.

Architects would also, with the information supplied, design the needed new buildings at the Middle School to make the middle school suitable for a high school.

One faculty member in the audience, Romaine Hill, said the same proposal had been made several years ago, but the information supplied was ignored by the board of education. She said she was still bitter because when the same request was made before the Middle School was constructed, a lot of time and effort was expended by the faculty staff in providing the requested input, but none of the suggestions or recommendations was considered.

It was pointed out that none of the present members of the board of education or the administration was in office at that time, and they hoped to rectify the past experience.

Fred Keeble of Keeble and Rhoda Architects of Carmel, was at Tuesday's meeting, and encouraged the staff to supply the valuable information. "We should encourage the staff to supply this data," he said, "and we are going to listen to you."

Keeble said, "the better the facility, the better the program, and the better the job can be done."

"Tell us what you need, and we'll show you if we can do it or not," he added.

Several members of the audience apparently misunderstood the board of education's intentions concerning the construction of new facilities at the Middle School. They felt existing classrooms would have to be utilized as they were.

Keeble explained that with input from the staff, his firm could determine what new facilities would need to be constructed, and which existing buildings could be best utilized in their present state, or remodeled.

Keeble said his firm's studies indicate the present high school is inadequate to provide facilities for 1,200 students, that 1,000 was the maximum.

"We are looking forward to 1,200 to 1,500 students, and we recommend against this (high school) site," Keeble said.

A bond election is being proposed for March of 1974, and before the board of education can place the issue on the ballot, it must first determine whether to ask the voters for funds to renovate the high school and leave the two schools as they presently are, or to ask for funds to remodel the high school and construct buildings at the middle school.

Harris Taylor, superintendent, said the bond issue would ask for from $1 to $3 million.

"It is my estimate that it would take at least $1 million to refurbish this building no matter who is here."

"We would ask staff experts to supply us with their future needs even before a bond election," he said.

School Trustee Fran Graver expressed the board's feelings when she told the audience, "any solution we come up with is going to require a bond election."

The board plans to continue holding study sessions in an effort to provide a solution to the school housing problem.

New Chamber directors named

A new slate of 10 directors were elected last night at the annual Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce dinner.

Announcement of the new directors was made following a dinner meeting held at the Del Monte Lodge in Carmel Valley.

Roger Poyner, Monterey County Supervisor representing the fourth district, spoke to the large gathering on the water problems afflicting the Valley.

Officers elected to serve the coming term are: Skip Marquard, Lou Allaire, Henry Stalder, Dr. Ed Marcucci, Richard Brinton, Laurie Parsons, Chuck Woodson, Lou Gardner, Tom Lemmon and Lee Mink.

Following the dinner, Supervisor Poyner fielded questions from the audience regarding the water shortage in Carmel Valley and the entire Monterey Peninsula, and its effect on the commercial growth of the Valley.

Officers to serve the coming year will be elected at the Dec. 5 board of directors meeting.

Cleanup campaign

The removal of the unsightly cans, glass and trash which clutter the beautiful Arroyo Seco Gorge is the goal of an organized clean-up campaign sponsored by Monterey Peninsula College's University for Man (UFM). According to John Steers, campaign coordinator, the project will continue for two days, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 17 and 18. "Peninsula area residents are urged to devote some portion of this weekend to help make this community event a success," according to Steers.

Sign-ups are being conducted through the UFM office. For further information, contact Steers at 375-9821, ext. 283 or evenings, at 659-4697.

Environmental Impacts Reports explained

By LUCY SMITHSON

An Environmental Impact Report is now required for many new developments during early planning stages. Currently it is the developer who is responsible for preparing the EIR. There is some controversy whether the EIR should be prepared by persons representing the developer who may be inclined to submit reports favorable towards the planned development or whether EIRs should be written by the county or by some independent agency with no conflict of interest.

In light of the controversy surrounding this subject, it may be interesting to tune in a television program called "Impact" shown over KQED (channel 9) Saturdays at 1 p.m. This is a series of programs for the writers of Environmental Impact Reports. It is also a college course which may be taken for credit or for a certificate through the Office of Continuing Education, California State University at San Jose, Hayward, and San Francisco, or University of California at Davis or Santa Cruz and others.

On Saturday, Nov. 10, a panel of educators and a representative of the California State Department of Transportation discussed the impact of new developments on the natural environment. Chairman Rollie Hauser, Professor of Physical Sciences at Chico, emphasized that esthetic considerations are different from the real, long-term ability to support life of a particular piece of land. As an example he offered the horror most people would feel if the beautifully landscaped grounds of the State Capitol Building in Sacramento were bulldozed for housing. Esthetically a great deal would be lost. However, in terms of access to services and transportation, water supply and drainage, that particular plot would lose nothing by development.

Information about the underlying geology of a site is available from the California Bureau of Mines in Sacramento which has mapped the geology of every part of the state. Topological maps from the U.S. Geological Survey may also be useful. A new tool for environmentalists is now being prepared by the state. This will be plastic transparent overlays which exactly fit topo maps. On the overlays will be noted outstanding features such as faults, dangerous areas for tidal waves, rare flora and fauna. The overlay maps will be available next year as a notebook for each county.

Biology data are hard to obtain because at any given place a lot of dynamic processes are going on. Even the bacteria and fungi in the earth may be important to the nutrient cycle. Often the biologist's research tools must include a shovel, which one educator described jokingly as "the poor man's microscope" and he must turn over a few shovelfuls of dirt "to see what kind of critters are running around."

In some areas, introduced species have already displaced the native species. Replacing them with other non-native species represents no great loss. Consideration must be given to whether the natural change is going in the appropriate direction.

Air flows over a piece of property depend on local geography. The Department of Transportation has a self-contained van loaded with ambient air monitoring equipment which it sends around the state as needed. From such data, the scientists can predict what new highways will do to air quality at any particular place. Highway routes where possible are chosen to minimize the creation of pockets of polluted air.

Much of the data collected by the writers of Environmental Impact Reports is subjective and must be reported with inherent value judgements.

Value judgements require biased weighting. Report writers must always be willing to ask themselves, "How much good is this data?" or "What is this component worth? What will it cost to replace it?"

Professor Hauser recommends that in addition to preparing the Environment Impact Report, the writer should prepare for himself an inventory of the "change-decisions" that may result from this EIR. He cautions EIR writers to give more consideration to esthetic effects, game animals, endangered species. Short term advantages such as rise in employment or increase in tax base should not be given greater weight than long-term -- greater than twenty years -- effects.

Persons enrolling in this course for credit receive a syllabus describing various graphs and matrices to display in their reports. Meeting county and state requirements for Environmental Impact Reports is also a consideration.

Station KQED also recommends the program "Impact" for casual viewing by interested citizens.

Coastal Zone Act is called 'lies'

The Ventana Chapter of Sierra Club asserted today that the Coastal Zone Conservation Act has "given the lie to prophets who last November predicted that construction along the coast would come to a grinding halt."

The chapter's executive committee hailed the first anniversary of Proposition 20, "which in its baptismal year has shown great promise for the future of coastal growth."

From February through September, 1973, regional and state zoning commissions received 5,114 applications for permits to build within 1,000 yards of the shoreline, the statement said, and granted permits to 4,141 projects, or 82 per cent. Only 126, or 2 1/2 per cent, were finally denied, with some 15 per cent of the applications still pending.

"But the high percentage of permits granted doesn't tell the whole story," the chapter said. "The most undesirable and offensive projects have been discouraged and in many cases, developments which had been discussed before last November have dropped out of sight."

The Sierra Club group admitted that there has been a decline in construction, but said most of it can be attributed to lumber costs, interest rates and financing difficulties. "On the Monterey Peninsula, an additional factor has been the water crisis, which last May led the PUC to order a halt to almost all new developments until additional water sources can be found," it said.

The Sierra Club's report continued: "The record of the Central Coast Zoning Commission shows that some permit denials have been temporary. Several permits have been granted the second or third time around -- when the developer demonstrated more willingness to modify his plan to make it acceptable."

"The people of the Monterey Peninsula, who helped carry Proposition 20 a year ago, can be especially pleased with the results. Developers who had hoped to build high density projects on Sand City and Seaside beaches did not even bother to apply for permits. The Monterey urban renewal convention center has been whittled down to a more reasonable size, and now seems likely to win acceptance."

"Meantime, long-range coastal planning has begun and we look forward eagerly to the first of thirteen draft elements, the one on marine environment. We understand that this draft, prepared under the leadership of Ruth Andresen, Central Coast Zoning Commissioner from Salinas, will be released publicly in the next two weeks."

"We believe that our central coast areas may have most to gain from planning now, because the reach of shoreline from north San Mateo county to south Monterey county is probably less spoiled than any other stretch along the entire 1,072 miles of California coast."

CARMEL VALLEY GARDEN ASSOCIATION ELECTS INSTALLATION AT the annual Christmas dinner party for members and guests of the Carmel Valley Garden Association is in store for the new slate of officers unanimously elected at last Thursday's meeting of the organization. Incoming president, Mrs. Clyde (Beth) Hitchcock will be assisted by Burr Robbins, vice president; Mary Martin, corresponding secretary; Nell Scott, treasurer; Harry Ball, recording secretary; Mrs. Fred Coggeshall, refreshments; and board of directors, Lin Sims, Harold Maynard, Chris Scheiswol, and Mrs. Ben O'Hara. Guest speaker and former Garden Club President, Irwin T. Johnson gave an informative discussion of Trees for all Seasons. Date for the Christmas party was set for Dec. 8, with the place to be announced later.

ST. DUNSTAN'S HOLIDAY BAZAAR
THE MANY LOVELY handcrafted gift items featured annually by the ladies of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church at their holiday bazaar are certain to please special people on your Christmas gift giving list if you are among the early shoppers at the Dec. 1 event. Chairman Mrs. Leslie (Shirley) Biggens and her committee members will open the doors of the holiday gala at 10:30 a.m. at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church on West Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon Roads. In addition to gifts there will be delicious baked goods and a luncheon prepared by the men will be served at 11:30. Remember the date; Saturday, Dec. 1.

MPVS FALL SALE
THE ANNUAL Monterey Peninsula Volunteers Services Fall Sale will feature clothing, gourmet items, antiques, collectables, what-nots, Christmas gifts and decorations, fresh produce, jewelry, hand-sewn items, and a snack bar for the convenience of their customers. There will also be three door prizes -- two tickets to the Crosby Tournament, a gift package of wine, and a gift package from Saks Fifth Avenue. Robert McFarren, Carmel artist, has donated a painting for the drawing. The sale is scheduled for Nov. 17, at the Exhibition Hall, Monterey County Fairgrounds. Hours 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. Donations $1. Family Service Agency, which last year received $6,641.80, will benefit again this year. Since 1954, M.P.V.S. has contributed $50,640.22 to their cause. This year, Family Service Agency completes 26 years of social service to the community and has become a recognized family casework agency that helps all people with personal and family problems no matter what their occupation or economic circumstances.

Committee chairmen are as follows: Mrs. J.W. Schallerer, project chairman; Mrs. Harry Gillett (of Carmel Valley), sewing; Mrs. John Menczkowski, jewelry; Mrs. O.C. Peters, gourmet; Mrs. Stephen Conran, antiques and what-nots; Mrs. William Godwin, clothes; Mrs. A.F. Anderson, snack bar; Mrs. Elva Jude, Christmas; Mrs. Alyce Humbarger, tickets; Mrs. Marie Craig, prizes; Mrs. Robert Henny, decorating; Mrs. S.W. Cutler, poster distribution.

Advance tickets may be purchased at the Fitzgerald Gallery, 2108 Sunset Drive, Pacific Grove; Family Service Agency, 1030 Cass Street, Monterey, and the MPVS Thrift Shop, Seaside.

CLEAN-UP DAY
COMMUNITY Center Clean-Up Day produced from the bushes (where young workmen were looking for stones to border the shrubs) a fire extinguisher which was turned over to Fire Chief Chip and the boys at the Fire House. A Ring Lane resident Clayton Neill, Jr. has accepted an appointment to the Board of Commissioners of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District to serve the unexpired year's term of Morden Buck. Morden and his wife recently sold their home in La Rancheria and are living in Carmel near the Mission until their condominium at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club is completed. Commissioner Ed Haber was reappointed to another four year term and the third commission, Paul Porter has another year remaining at his current post.

"THE PHANTOM OAK MOTHS" is indebted to Evelyn Rhoades (who with her family were recently highlighted in an article in a Peninsula paper for their devotion to restoring antique autos) for sharing a copy of "The Upper Circle News" -- dated August 10, 1961, and sold door to door for a dime by the neighborhood small fry. Evelyn can't remember who the youngsters were, but undoubtedly the publisher-

Marital infidelity, humorist's 'gold mine'

By ROBERT MISKIMON

MARITAL INFIDELITY, real and imagined, is a humorist's gold mine, and this vein is exploited to its hilarious limits in "How the Other Half Loves," which opened last week at the Studio Theatre Restaurant in Carmel.

The work originally was produced in England, and is the exception that disproves the rule that domestic comedies can't be transplanted from one country to another.

As pointed out in the program notes, the comedy opened in March of 1971 with Phil Silvers and Sandy Dennis, and had a three-month run. Following that, the work was brought to the hinterlands, where it is enjoying warm receptions.

Through just the right amount of "realistic" language, effective character portrayal, and an ingenious staging device wherein separate scenes are made to overlap, the play is fast-moving and attention-grabbing.

The device of using time-warp and separate scenes, enacted on the same stage, enabled the audience to participate in the fragmented love lives of three sets of couples and trebled the comic effect by enabling the absurdity of the story to rebound through a three-cornered prism.

The three couples are Bob and Teresa Phillips, (played by Danny Gochnauer and Heather Stafford), Frank and Fiona Foster, (played by Dick Vreeland and Raylene Ewing), and William and Mary Detweiler (played by Jeff Richmond and Ellen Sherman).

The action begins when Teresa Phillips becomes suspicious of her husband, Bob, for staying out late one night and doesn't fully believe his explanation that he was just "having a few with the boys."

Specifically, Bob says he was talking with William Detweiler, a business associate, in an effort to salvage his marriage.

The fact that Bob Phillips was having a tryst with Fiona Foster, wife of Bob's boss, becomes known when they telephone each other the next morning.

Fiona's husband, Frank, is also suspicious of the fact his wife was out late the night before, but bumblingly passes over the irregularity and believes his wife's story that she was consoling Mary Detweiler about her marital problems.

Teresa Phillips, smelling a rat, decides to invite the Detweilers to dinner, to test her suspicions. Frank Foster, because he is concerned about the need to maintain order and marital bliss within his department, similarly decides to invite the young couple to dinner.

Although the two dinner invitations are for different nights, through the dramatic device of simultaneous scenes and interwoven dialogue, all three couples sit down to the same table—minus Bob Phillips, who rages out of the house before the Detweilers arrive.

The action becomes a roller-coaster rib-tickler, as the demure, shy Detweilers bear up under the drunken diatribes of the Phillipses and the coy inferences of the Fosters, turning one way when relating to one time and scene, and another when in another time.

The device is very effective, because the audience's imagination is forced into activity, amplifying the comic line.

THE SITUATION escalates when William Detweiler becomes suspicious of his wife, Mary, after she goes to the Phillips' house the next day to help clean up the mess left from the dinner party. This results when Frank Foster telephones the Phillips' home to hear the phone answered by Mary Detweiler.

Although Detweiler punches Bob Phillips in misdirected rage, the violence resolves itself comically when the fact of Bob's dalliance with Fiona is revealed to Teresa, although Frank Foster remains in the dark about his wife's misconduct.

The story permits some hilarious side-swipes, including telephone calls which are mistaken for obscene, and humorous references to many contemporary inanities.

Heather Stafford gives a brilliant portrayal of Teresa Phillips, the harried, child-weary mother and wife of her errant husband, Bob. Her stage mannerisms are professional in the sense they appear natural, and her dialogue is equally as low-keyed. She has an extensive theater background, although this is her first appearance with the Studio Theatre.

Dick Vreeland, appearing in his 24th dramatic role on the Monterey Peninsula, gives a convincing rendition of the well-intentioned, naive Frank Foster. His timing and delivery, as are those of Ms. Stafford, are excellent.

Danny Gochnauer, as Bob Phillips, is indisputably stage-oriented and possesses dramatic talent. One would perhaps wish for a somewhat less frenetic rendering of the character of Bob Phillips than he presents.

Raylene Ewing, who portrayed Sister Margaretta in "The Sound of Music" at the Studio Theatre last summer, gives a less than inspired portrayal of Fiona Foster, whom one would expect to be more seductive in this role.

Both Jeff Richmond as William Detweiler, and Ellen Sherman as Mary Detweiler, give good performances which buttress the fine acting by the other players. Excellent, too is the staging which enhances the split-scene technique, and without which it would not be effective.

Credit should also go to director Bill Asp, who has returned to this area after living in Oakland, and to stage manager Roberta Little for good use of technical details.

That the Studio Theatre is presenting good entertainment is attested to by the fact Clint Eastwood and his wife were among the Sunday night audience which gave a roar of approval to the production.

IN THE MIDST of a telephone conversation with her lover, Bob Phillips, Fiona Foster, played by Raylene Ewing, is interrupted by her semi-suspicious husband, Frank, played by Dick Vreeland. They appear in "How the Other Half Loves" at Carmel's Studio Theatre Restaurant.

Teen volunteers help with patients

Two teenage girls from Carmel Valley have been spending their Sundays bringing pleasure to patients at the Carmel Hillhaven Convalescent Hospital. Veronica Bestor and Wendy Westsmith are members of the American Red Cross Youth Group sponsored by the Carmel Chapter, under the leadership of volunteer Chairman of Youth, Mrs. F. John Davey.

"The girls are very popular, they have worked hard and been most cooperative, the patients, as well as the staff really appreciate their services and look forward to their visits," Mrs. Davey said.

"The restless, searching spirit of youth is a major resource of the American Red Cross. Our youth program involves more than 40,000 young people in leadership development and community action programs throughout the country," Mrs. Davey continued.

"In addition to Veronica and Wendy, we have Debbie Silver and Anne Leonard of Carmel who have donated over 150 hours of service to Hillhaven, these girls spent everyday of their last summer vacation working at the hospital and they are now serving at least once a week after school hours with the patients."

Mrs. Davey further stressed that the program is open to all young people with the idea of creating opportunities for youth to become involved in humanitarian service. Those interested in finding out more about the program as offered through the Carmel Red Cross Chapter may do so by telephoning 624-6921.

There will be a Western Area Conference of Red Cross Youth at Asilomar, Jan. 27-30, 1974 dealing with the Red Cross Youth programs for volunteers and staff.

MOVIES IN REVIEW

By GALE QUINSEY

IT'S NOT too difficult to imagine how a film like "The Way We Were" first evolved. Picture, if you will, two Hollywood VBDs (Very Big Deals) discussing their studio's financial situation:

"We need a blockbuster, Morey. Something that will really pull in the suckers."

"Right, B.J."

"We'll put two superstars in the leads, have lots of nostalgia since that's all the rage now, trendy clothes..."

"Right, B.J."

"... throw in some politics, a little sex, but not too much, a catchy title song, and we've got a hit on our hands."

"Right, B.J."

And so they do have a hit on their hands, albeit a flawed one at best.

Nothing rings true in this stylishly produced film. Not the acting of its two superstars, Barbra Streisand and Robert Redford, not the overdone, synthetic sets and costumes, and especially not the ill-conceived, unrealistic plot.

The plot, such as it is, revolves around the conflict between a dedicated, leftist Leninist, champion cause fighter extraordinaire (la Streisand), and an intellectually lazy, easygoing, affable, All-American golden boy (Redford).

They meet in college in 1937, but Streisand has little use for Redford, despite the fact that a paper of his read aloud in their writing class reveals that not only is he a super jock, but — wonder of wonders — a man with sensitivity and depth as well (a very rare breed indeed, and, as luck would have it, they had all but died out by the time I got to college).

Our two stars drift apart, and then come together again in New York City during The Great War. Throwing caution to the winds, Streisand falls in love with Redford. They begin an affair, fight over her causes and his lack of commitments, break up, get back together again, fight a lot over her causes, get married and move to Hollywood where he becomes a screenwriter, and fight a lot.

BY THE TIME the film ends it is the late 50s, our two lovers have gone through the traumas of the McCarthy witch hunts, the same fight, round 937, produced a baby and finally, they get a divorce. One day they run into each other on the street in New York, where Redford introduces his blonde, WASPish wife and Streisand mentions something about her nice Jewish husband.

They hug each other a lot and weep a bit over the days gone by, the memories shared and the way they were. Redford goes off to write scripts for television, and Streisand goes off to her latest cause, banning the bomb. Moral: birds of a feather, etc., etc.

The inconsistencies in the film are annoying and

B of A Village has new manager

Frank P. Catalano has been promoted to manager of Bank of America's Carmel Valley Village office, J.B. Wiesler, regional vice president has announced.

Catalano, 62, succeeds Dave Redman who has been promoted to the bank's Mill Valley office.

A native of San Francisco, Catalano joined the bank in 1929 as a messenger at the San Francisco Day and Night office. In 1956 he was named manager of the Salinas Valley Center office. He has also served as loan officer in San Bruno and Palo Alto as a liaison officer for Business Services in San Francisco. Catalano comes to Carmel Valley from the Story-King office in San Jose where he was loan officer.

During his career with Bank of America, Catalano has been active in numerous community organizations and was recently awarded the Silver Beaver by the Santa Clara County Council of the Boy Scouts of America. He has also coached Little League and Babe Ruth League baseball in Seaside, Monterey, Salinas, San Bruno, Millbrae and Palo Alto.

Catalano and his wife, Phyllis, have two boys. They recently purchased a home on Tierra Grande, Carmel Valley.

numerous. Redford's bleached locks stay exactly the same length (a la 1973) through the entire movie, and of course no one ages a whit in those 30-odd years of hard in-fighting.

A great deal of attention is given to the details of the 40s look, but the dress styles of the 50s are completely ignored. Well, who can really blame them? Those weren't exactly our most glamorous days. Remember?

Crew cuts, baggy pants with pleats, dresses that came to the shin bone. Streisand is a great one for old clothes, but it's a little hard to imagine her looking glamorous in a felt skirt with poodles sewn on it. But that was the way we dressed back then.

Streisand's acting has become little more than a parody of herself, and she spends most of the movie talking like Karl Marx and looking like Harpo Marx.

Redford's acting improves with each film, but his one real saving grace is his incredibly virile good looks. In fact, now that Paul Newman is past his prime, Robert Redford is probably the most gorgeous hunk on the screen these days. So if vicarious lusting is your thing, then that alone should be reason enough for seeing "The Way We Were," now playing at Carmel's Golden Bough Theatre, Monte Verde and 8th. ## Writing to sell seminar slated

The University for Man will sponsor an intermediate-level writing seminar "Writing to Sell," to develop professionalism and potential as a commercial writer beginning Mon., Nov. 19 at Monterey Peninsula College. Elements of the novel, the short story and the article will be reviewed and examined by Paul F. Patchick, group leader. How to write query letters to editors and agents, and how to find a good publisher will be discussed. Weekly feedback on the writer's own unpublished material will be provided by the leader and by the participants themselves. Written exercises and assignments will be given to develop technique, refine skill, and increase saleability. Re-writing will be encouraged and emphasized, as will collateral reading.

"Writing to Sell" will be led by a full-time writer who has had 52 of his works published, and in addition has written over 800 scientific reports during his 16-year career as an earth scientist. Mr. Patchick is the co-author of a 5-vol monograph published by the U.N. and has authored 11 articles on gems and minerals, and 22 other scientific papers appearing in journals or trade magazines.

Paul Patchick recently completed a speculative fiction novel, THE CRATERS, which is currently being read by publishers in Boston. He has been putting the final touches to a collection of 10 short stories and four articles, and is hard at work on his second novel, THE SAN ANDREAS PROJECT.

Interested persons are requested to contact Miss Sherry Pastor at the University For Man offices, 375-9821, Ext. 283 to make reservations, and to receive the room number of the seminar.

Enrollment is limited to a minimum of 10, and a maximum of 25. ## Holography lecture

Dr. Albert Baez will be the guest speaker in a one-night lecture-demonstration program, entitled "Holography for the Millions," Saturday, Nov. 17, in Monterey Peninsula College Lecture Forum 103.

There will be no admission charge to the 8 p.m. lecture, which will describe through films and demonstrations a new method of photography called holography, three dimensional photography which does not require the use of lenses.

Dr. Baez is a consultant on science education to the United Nations and UNESCO. He is also a summer school faculty member at Harvard University.

The newsy little missile read: "Yesterday, Mrs. Betty Antoncich took her Nursery School to Dennis the Menace Play Park and had a picnic. They left at 9 a.m. and came back at 11 a.m. They had a wonderful time ... Gay and Franci Antoncich are working at White Oaks Summer Theater selling tickets to the play "Wonderful Town," which is running the rest of this week and all of next -- except on Monday and Tuesday nights ... Mr. and Mrs. Len Rhoades moved with their four children, into the Warner's house located on the corner of Upper Circle last week ... Mrs. Crockett and her three children, Carrey, Carol and Allan, went on a camping trip to Big Sur. Accompanying them were Mrs. Strathmeyer and her two daughters, Keven and Christy. They plan to be gone for a few days ... Mrs. Peter Lisaman, who lives next to the Carvers, went on a trip to Wyoming to her father's ranch. She is expected to be back by August 20. Mrs. Krob, who lives in Seaside comes out every day to take care of Mrs. Lisaman's three sons, Jeffery, Jonathan, and Nicky. Jeffery and Jonathan are twins ... A few days ago the Virling family came to visit the Wilseys. The Virlings come from the Wilseys' home town, Des Moines, Iowa. They are on a tour of the coast ... The Marzi family of Upper Circle have lost a Siamese cat. If you find a cat answering this description, phone Olive (remember that prefix?) 92800. The Marzis are also giving away a kitten ... Mr. Marzi's parents, John and Ellen, came down to visit their son, his wife, and their son. They plan to stay until August 28." The little paper also included a page of stick figure comics and humor such as:

"Most motorcycle cops I see
Seem very mild and mannerly:
The few I've seen who acted gruff,
I didn't see quite soon enough!"

No one could remember who the enterprising journalists were -- do you?

Doors of the church at the mouth of the Valley will open 10-4 each day according to Mrs. Herbert Blanks, chairman of the annual pre-holiday event. All proceeds benefit the Sunday School.

TIGERS AND COWBOYS TIE 6-6

CV COMMUNITY CENTER sponsored Flag Football teams at Tularcitos field were able to beat the showers on Saturday according to Coach Herb Reuter who relates an exciting 6-6 tie of the Tigers and Cowboys.

"Defense Ron Scholink, Don Azcarate, Will and Wayne Farr stymied the first quarter Tiger running attack while Ray Cloyd, Ron Alexander, and David Anderson thwarted the Cowboys aerial game.

The stalwart defenses prevailed throughout the second quarter as Tom Zeleny of the Tigers led their defense in repelling the Cowboy thrusts and again Azcarate of the Cowboys stalled the Tiger's attack.

In the middle of the third quarter two successive pass completions from Randy Evans to Eric Collas opened the scoring for the Cowboys.

The score was tied in the fourth quarter when Evans' pass to Collas was intercepted by Brian Pearson and he went 35 yards for the Tiger score.

BRONCOS 20 -- RAIDERS 18

Barry Powell swept right end of the third play of the game for 6 and then converted. After a fifteen-yard penalty Brent Buche, in two plays that covered 60 yards, scored for the Raiders.

Defense prevailed as Powell, Tracy Parks, and Keith Moore stopped the Raider ground attack. Possession time was equal for both teams as Kurt Buche inspired the Raider defense which halted the Bronco running game.

After exchanging punts Powell went off tackle for 6 points. Conversion was good. Raiders punted on fourth down and Powell eluded the Raider defense and scored. Conversion failed.

Brent Buche on successive power plays scored the Raider's second tally behind the blocking of Walt Reuter and Art Muir. After Reuter stalled the Bronco's passing attack, the Raiders returned the Broncos punt to mid-field. On the sixth grinding play, Kevin Sorri behind the find blocking of Randi Paik, Art Muir, and Brent Buche scored for the Raiders."

Lou Allaire, familiar name in Valley

By EVELYN RHOADES

It's not the heavenly weather alone that makes Carmel Valley a very special place.

It's the very special characters who built this Shangri-la. Although some of the most colorful older-timers have left this life, one old-timer, (that's anyone over thirty. Right?) who helped build this community is Lou Allaire.

About 5'11" in height and of average weight, Lou's French and Spanish ancestry show in his dark hair, piercing dark eyes and quick smile.

If you believe that behind every good man there is a good woman, then perhaps you'll believe Lou might be an extra good man. He had two good women behind him.

A-ha, you're thinking I'll turn up a scandal? To tell the truth, some of the good deeds he had done when he first entered this area, might be told by the lovely Carmel Valley ladies, Mrs. M. Antonich or Mrs. D. Chappell, or many, many others. Like most men, Lou would be embarrassed at this praise so much will be left unsaid.

You all know of the little bit of bad in each good little boy. In Outlook's Nov. 1 issue you read how Lou learned to smoke a pipe, and how he's kicked the habit.

The same time he had a bit of bad in him, he had a gob of good. He began his hobby of model airplane building with balsa wood, etc.

The first of the two great ladies in Lou's life was his mother. A devout Roman Catholic, she sent her four boys and two girls to San Carlos Parochial School in Monterey. The family attended Catholic Mass on Sunday in the old DeAmaral barn that once stood where the Tantamount Theatre now stands.

The protestant worship service was held in the same building on the same day. The Rev. Harrison Pillsbury, who acted as protestant minister at that time, was guest speaker several years ago at the burning of the mortgage on the Community Chapel. He compared the Catholic and Protestant Churches as twins, as they were born at the same time in the same building. It was in that same brotherly spirit that Father Keating, now priest at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church, and the Rev. Johnson, of Carmel Valley Community Chapel, have extended invitations to each other's congregation. Through this "togetherness" I learned there was so much more to the Allaire family than their good business reputations.

While a guest in the Catholic church, I heard a strong and vibrant voice sing praise to his God. Lou is a member of the choir.

Ruth, the second great woman in his life, his wife of twenty-six years, is not only mother to their four children, but a partner and companion in every sense of the word. With her radiant smile and figure of a teen-agers, she collects and arranges the flowers each Sunday on the altar of their church. When needed she helps in the office. She shares his hobby, flying, and one of hers, playing tennis. In addition, Ruth is a professional, free-lance, flower-arranger and creates artistic arrangements for mantles or receptions. "R & M" originals could be seen at Merrilee's on Cannery Row. Ruth has some on display at the Carmel Valley General Store.

LOU ALLIARE stands by his pride and joy, his Cessna "Bald Eagle" which he calls a real time saver.

IN HIS OFFICE, Lou Allaire and his wife Ruth, attend to the business of the day in his insurance office in Carmel Valley Village.

ride does a baby. Just once, I remember, was I ever alarmed. I fell asleep as usual and...you tell it, Lou."

"Well, there are two gas tanks and I was letting the one drain until I opened the other. It was more empty than I thought and we started down, waking Ruth."

"The whole thing was over in seconds, of course. It's really very safe, flying. There are very strict Federal laws of annual inspection to mechanical parts of an airplane." Lou sat back in his desk chair and smiled fondly at his mate.

"I'd sure rather be up there at the time of an earthquake," I said. "Do you think there would be any significant air turbulence up there?"

"I can't say," Lou answered, "but I don't imagine there'd be."

"There are some faults that show quite visibly by plane in the Arroyo Seco area," offered Ruth.

"I imagine you're pleased to have those gas tanks installed at the airport?" I asked.

"Well, it's nice to be able to fuel up at home," Lou admitted. "Some folks would rather not have the airport, but that land was meant for that purpose long before some of them came to the. It's not the people who live nearest who complain. Most folks I talk to feel the airport is more pleasant than another sub-division with septic and pollution problems."

I agreed.

The greatest beauty of country living is that there should be enough room for an individual to grow. Here, after a hard day's work at routine family providing and donating to community services, a person should be able to also enjoy his hobby.

I don't think there are too many men who have done more for this area than Lou Allaire.

I first realized this when I saw his name for many, many years at the top of the Red Cross Blood Donor Chart. Marjorie McKiernon, chairman of the Red Cross Blood Mobile for the past fourteen years, said Lou has given about seven gallons of blood so far.

Presently, Lou is active in the Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Club and Toastmaster's Club.

He recently retired after twenty-three years as a Carmel Valley Volunteer Fireman. His secretary, Jeannie Mitchell, would be happy to show you the award given to him for this service. It is on his display in his insurance office on Pilot Road in the Village.

If one word only, were to be used to describe Lou Allaire, I'd use the word integrity. He'll turn business elsewhere when it is in the best interest of the customer. For my special needs he recommended me to another. My son, Bob Eaton, saved by help and insurance in Lou's office.

Back to the first great woman in Lou's life. His mother must be proud, but not more proud than he is of her. After raising her family and after the death of her husband in 1951, Lou's mother entered the Nunnery to serve her God. He rejoices that his mother, Sister M. Bibiana of the Franciscan Order, is presently living a "peaceful and lovely life" at the Ave Maria Convent in Josselyn Canyon.

Lou just returned from a three day retreat "Cursillio" in the Santa Cruz mountains where Catholics renew their faith.

And now we all know the specialties that went into our special character. Fantastic!!

THE ALLAIREs look over a collection of paintings of early day aircraft which adorn the walls of Lou's office.

Their children include three sons and one daughter. David, 20, is in Gavilan College studying mechanics at Hollister Airport; Tom, 16, is a junior at Carmel High; Mat, 14, is a freshman at Carmel High; and Davette, 24, is studying in San Francisco.

Lou played with planes as a boy, and served in the Army Air Corps as radio operator A.T.C. from 1940-43. He was recalled during the Korean conflict and in 1947 went into the Allaire Insurance Business. He was the first tenant in the building he now occupies, when it was completed in March of 1963. His love for planes stayed with him and now he is a taller boy with a bigger toy. His two-year old "Bald Eagle" Cessna, is a time saver when he and Ruth visit their old friend, the first priest of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, Fr. Loughran in Los Banos.

"It's a time-saver when we visit my mother in Pismo Beach," Ruth adds. "I'm asleep within forty-five minutes of the time we leave the ground. It relaxes me the way a car

Middle School eighth graders champs

Carmel Middle School's eighth grade football squad has sailed through an undefeated season, winning five contests and tying one.

In the squad's six outings, Carmel rolled up 93 points while giving up only 8 during the season. This provided them with the Monterey Peninsula Junior Championship.

| Carmel 20 | Pacific Grove 2 |
| Carmel 20 | Fitch 0         |

The victory over Fitch was the first loss of the season for the opponents.

In seventh grade action during the season, Carmel picked up five wins and just one loss to share co-championship honors with Colton and Los Arboles.

MPC Homecoming November 17

The annual "Homecoming" football game at Monterey Peninsula College will be played Saturday, Nov. 17, with Hartnell College. Immediately following the game there will be a homecoming dance in the MPC gymnasium.

According to Marty Omoto, student body president, "The dance is a non-profit event, sponsored by the student clubs at MPC, and under the direction of the Human Education Development Program."

Proceeds from the dance will go to the Advance Commitment Program, a project designed to help low income junior high and high school students within the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District to further their education.

Entertainment will be provided by "Slaughter," a Peninsula based group. Tickets for the dance are $1.75 general admission and $1.50 with a student body card.

For more information, call 375-9821, exts. 322 or 230.

dinner there will be hot homemade pumpkin pie with whipped cream! For that real homecooked dinner the Carmel Wine Cellar is the place. Don't forget they also serve dinners nightly except Mondays.

ENJOY THE ROMANCE of Rancho Canada while having one of their popular sandwiches for lunch some day soon. The magnificent scene from the dining area reflects the romantic historic heritage of this beautiful place. Long ago it was a prized part of a great California Rancho - Canada de la Segunda which was 4,366 acres given as a land grant to Lazaro Soto by the Mexican government in 1839. The natural beauty of Rancho Canada has been preserved with the tall cottonwoods and sycamores lining the lovely Carmel River and all sheltered by the lofty Santa Lucia mountains. Friday night, of course, is the great baron of beef and king crab buffet - be sure to make reservations for this Peninsula treat at Rancho Canada.

THE EXCELLENT service and outstanding menu at The Clock Restaurant in Monterey are but two of the things which make this restaurant so popular. Hidden behind the high blue gates of the garden patio, it is easiest to find by looking for the antique jeweler's clock. The colorful lounge and dining room were created from an old adobe carriage house, and flowers, fountains and gaslight background the conviviality. Featured entree this week is the London broil - flank steak from choice young beef bathed in a marinade of lemons and scallions and soy and spices - broiled to rare perfection - carved delicately thin - then sequestered in fresh mushrooms sauteed in white wine and butter. Call 375-6100 for reservations.

and his warriors conquered half the world while eating Fire Pot cookery! At the Outrigger the Fire Pot is brought to your table, where the succulent viands are prepared and served. First you choose from two gourmet combinations: beef, lamb, chicken and shrimp...or shrimp, abalone, sole and squid. Also included are imported bean thread, Chinese cabbage, mushrooms, bean curd, bamboo shoots and seven exotic sauces. For reservations call 372-8543.

LORE AND CHUCK are planning a very special Thanksgiving feast for you at the Carriage House in Carmel Valley. The cozy and intimate atmosphere of this fine restaurant provide an excellent background for your family's Thanksgiving dinner. Served from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m., the dinner is continuing the tradition of the very successful feast last year. Meanwhile the Friday night special at the Carriage House continues. Both Alaskan King Crab and Prime Rib are carved at a cart right at your table, and the dinner includes a salad, vegetable and beverage - all for only $6.25.

THE FAT ADMIRAL Restaurant on Cannery Row is serving the finest in seafood and porters...coupled with a fantastic salad bar where you can create your own masterpiece. Formerly the Fish Market, The Fat Admiral is located next to the Steinbeck Theatre. While dining you will enjoy the beautiful view of Monterey Bay and the lights beyond. Another feature is the unique "hole in the deck" where visitors can view the surf crashing against the pilings below the restaurant. Right now "Crab is King" at The Fat Admiral First the crab is cracked and then the flavor is highlighted by steaming it with herbs and spices. It is served with drawn butter or mayonnaise. Don't forget there is live entertainment on Thursdays through Saturdays from 9 p.m. at The Fat Admiral.

THE CHARM of the Mission Ranch Dining Room is enhanced by the Monterey Cypress trees - planted when the Ranch was built a hundred years ago as a dairy. The view of the Carmel River and Point Lobos has remained the same throughout the years. Another steady feature at the Mission Ranch is the excellent fare...Chef Sylvester is going on his 27th year with this restaurant. Filet Tips Saute (with mushrooms), Lobster Thermidor with Sherry (The Chef's Greatest) and Sole Sylvester en Casserole are three of Chef Sylvester's most popular dishes.

CHEZ FELIX is a small and intimate restaurant on the third floor of the Carmel Building in Cannery Row Square...if you haven't visited here yet you are missing a truly fine gourmet dining experience. Felix and Annie Roux are steeped in the best traditions of the finest of French Cuisine. Here are but a few of the gourmet entrees prepared: Poulet Saute Cynthia (chicken in champagne and raisin sauce), Poussin a la Cevenolle (cornish hen roasted with chestnuts), Paupiettes de Sole Normande (poached in seafood sauce), and Entrecote Marchand de Vin (New York cut sirloin, flambe cognac). Visit soon this little bit of France on Cannery Row...call 373-0556 for reservations.

Obituaries

J. Dwight Wilson

Private memorial services were held Monday at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church for J. Dwight Wilson, Hacienda Carmel, Carmel Valley. Inurnment was to take place in Mountain View Cemetery, Oakland, with Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Dr. Wilson died Friday after he collapsed while playing golf. He was 79.

A native of Sherman County, Ore., Dr. Wilson practiced in Berkeley from 1926 until 1950 as a physician and surgeon. He was a graduate of Stanford University Medical School, following his completion of undergraduate work at the University of Oregon. He moved to the Peninsula following his retirement in 1959.

He is survived by his wife, Iva, Carmel Valley; three sons, J. Dwight Jr., Medford, Ore., William of Woodland Hills, and James Wilson of Colorado Springs, Colo.; a sister, Mrs. Lily Mulligan, Covina; two brothers, L. Dove Wilson, Springfield, Ore., and C.C. Wilson of Corvallis, Ore., and ten grandchildren.

Contributions are preferred to the Alta Bates Hospital in Berkeley, or to the Community Hospital, Box HH, Carmel.

Stephen Stone

Word has been received here of the death of Stephen G. Stone, 21, a former Carmel Valley resident.

Mr. Stone died Thursday in Rogue Valley Hospital, Medford, Ore., from injuries sustained in an automobile accident Nov. 3, in the Shasta River Canyon.

He was a native and most recently a resident of Yreka, but Mr. Stone attended Tularcitos School in Carmel Valley, Carmel High School, and a summer session at Robert L. Stevenson School. He was a member of the Boy Scouts of America in Carmel Valley, the 4-H Club and Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Susan Stone, Yreka; his father, Robert Stone, Walnut Creek; a brother and sister, Robert of Yreka, and Karen of Walnut Creek; his grandparents, Mrs. Betty Stone of Pacific Grove, and Rose Stone of Walnut Creek.

Funeral services and burial was in Yreka.

Charles Scoville

Private memorial services were held Tuesday at Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Carmel Valley, for Charles Burton Scoville Jr.

Mr. Scoville, 73, of 71 Rancho Rd., Carmel Valley, died Friday at his home. He had been in failing health. He was a native of Chicago, Ill., and had resided on the Peninsula for the past several years.

Mr. Scoville was a member of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Parish and a papal knight of the Order of St. Gregory.

He is survived by three children, James of Osage City, Kan., Jefferson of Pebble Beach and Shelagh Kresser of Honolulu; a sister, Mrs. Shirley Hall, San Marino, and six grandchildren.

Mr. Scoville was to be entombed in Pasadena with Mission Mortuary in charge of the arrangements.

Charles Messick

Final rites were held Wednesday at Paul Mortuary for Charles S. Messick. Services were conducted under the auspices of IOOF Lodge No. 182, with burial at Mission Memorial Park.

Mr. Messick, 65, Meadows Road, Carmel Valley, died Friday at his home following a lengthy illness.

A native of Macdoel, Siskiyou County, he came to the Peninsula in 1927. He was owner and operator of Messick Garage and Service Station in Seaside for over 25 years.

Mr. Messick was a member of IOOF Lodge No. 182 and Cypress Rebekah Lodge No. 75, both in Pacific Grove; Compromise Encampment No. 37, and was a past chief patriarch of Salinas Canton No. 21, and a member of the Rod and Gun Club of Fort Ord.

He is survived by his wife Evelyn, Carmel Valley; a daughter, Mrs. Hans Probstmeyer, Watsonville, and two grandchildren.

Thanksgiving deadline

Because of the Thanksgiving Holiday both the Carmel Pine Cone and the Carmel Valley Outlook will be published one day early next week.

Closing date for editorial and advertising copy will be Monday noon, Nov. 19.

FIRST BAPTIST

Thanksgiving Sunday services at First Baptist, Carmel are different. The Congregation assembles around a large table of harvest bounty provided by the friends from their gardens to sing their praises of thanksgiving and share the gladness of their hearts in an informal hour of gratitude to God. In a special sense this is a Community service and everyone is welcome to attend this eleven o'clock worship experience. Special thanksgiving hymns and choral numbers support the litanies and congregational participation.

The evening program for Thanksgiving Sunday begins at 4:45 when Youth Minister, Rick Riso leads a seminar for parents on Ministry Principles to Youth. At six o'clock Mr. Riso, assisted by several youth leads the evening inspiration service with a challenge to the churches of the Peninsula to fulfill their role of spiritual training centers to all youth.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The Christian Science Lesson-Sermon this Sunday includes the following verse from Romans: "O man, who art thou that repliest against God? Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, why hast thou made me thus?" The subject of the sermon is "Mortals and

RSVP speaker at Kiwanis

Mrs. Elaine Castro, Administrator of R.S.V.P. (Rehabilitation Services & Volunteers of the Peninsula), Rippling River at Carmel Valley Village, was the guest speaker at the recent meeting of the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club at the Buckeye Restaurant here.

R.S.V.P. is the culmination of a dozen years of dedicated work by parents and friends of persons who are physically impaired, Mrs. Castro told the Kiwanians.

"Although our initial efforts were geared towards obtaining adequate public facilities such as street ramps and curbs for wheelchairs, and bookmobiles for shut-ins, we slowly began to think in terms of establishing a unique new concept in housing for the physically impaired," she said.

Mrs. Castro told of the "disappointment, fears and joys, hard work and determination" which have gone into the planning, developing and, soon, the beginning of construction at Rippling River. Ground breaking should take place in late December, she said.

When completed, R.S.V.P. will provide housing for 150 physically impaired persons. The endeavor has received HUD approval, Mrs. Castro said, noting that there still is a great need for additional funds. "We need money to purchase kitchen and dining room equipment, therapy equipment, mortgage points dollars, craft shop materials and a host of items not covered by the financial agreement, but which are needed to make our dreams come true," Mrs. Castro concluded.

GRANDMA SEZ

By EVELYN RHOADES

Though this problem came from a young person who had finished college, but was not ready to settle down, I believe we can safely assume it could be the question of a number of Carmel Valley young folk in their twenties.

Ques: How do you tell a parent that money is not the most important thing in the world?

To: All the twenty-year-olds who might have asked ...

My answer comes in two parts.

1. From personal experience wherein my grandfather and grandmother believed money was God. They both worked. Their only son, my father, grew up "on the streets" and died at the age of twenty-eight in prison.

Fortunately, I have a loving mother, who at that time was forced to work. She was an R.N. and paid board for three of us who lived in different homes. I was lucky. I was raised in the home of a devout Protestant, the home of a devout Catholic and the home of a devout Jew. It was a learning and enlightening experience. It's undeniable that one working, loving parent can give less than half the love of two. So in this example, money caused the lack of much needed family love.

2. Dr. George Greer, a retired theologian, lives with his wife, Helen, at the Hacienda Carmel. He spoke to the Women's Guild of the Carmel Valley Community Chapel a while back and asked the question you might ask of your parents. "Who would you consider the greatest man of the 20th century?"

Perhaps your parent, after a bit of research, would come up with names Mahatma Gandhi or Albert Schweitzer. "These great men, consumed by their love for people, are the remembered." And why? Not because of their material possessions. Their deeply religious convictions gave them the strength in all odds to live up to their beliefs.

Or, ask your parent to list five people in his (or her) life he (or she) most admired. What was there about these? Inevitably, the answer will show your parents money is not the most important thing in the world.

Then, I'd offer my parent (only after I was sure myself) the thought that a quiet, personal relationship with the Giver of life and death, would be the greatest thing in the world. It represents deeper love and greater strength in faith and hope in all of life and mankind. And this is free to those with an open mind. From the oldest and best seller, "Seek and Ye Shall Find."

Ashton Stanley elected commander

Ashton A. Stanley of Carmel Valley has just been re-elected Commander and Robert C. Smith of Monterey elected Vice Commander of Flotilla 44 of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary in Monterey following the annual meeting held last evening at base headquarters.

Appointed by Stanley as Flotilla Staff Officers were: Robert C. Smith of Monterey, Operations Officer; Willard B. Coons of Carmel, Finance Officer; David G. Thompson of Monterey, Membership Training Officer; James R. Large of Carmel Valley, Courtesy Motorboat Examining Officer, and John D. Riffin of Pebble Beach, Communications Officer.

Following the election, Stanley announced plans for a campaign to obtain new members of the flotilla through public educational courses in Boating Safety and Seamanship to commence shortly after the first of the year. There is no charge for these courses and are given weekly as a public service by the Coast Guard Auxiliary and Flotilla 44 of Monterey.

"With continued marine accidents and loss of life that could have been prevented, the need for educating boating enthusiasts in safety precautions and basic seamanship was never more needed than now and it is up to us to do something about it," Stanley said in adjourning the meeting.

Live by Carmel's Great Lake

The beautiful lake at Arroyo Carmel may not be as large as a Lake Michigan or a Lake Superior, but it's a great lake. And, there are a lot of reasons why.

There's our location... at the gateway to the Carmel Valley and only minutes from anywhere on the Monterey Peninsula. There's our outstanding selection of two bedroom luxury townhomes, designed to offer a whole new concept in leisure living. There's our wide variety of luxury amenities and appointments that make life as easy inside as it is outside, where professionals are hired to perform all exterior maintenance and gardening. And, there's our complete recreation facilities that go along with the great lake, including professional style tennis courts, a swimming pool, and a naturally wooded area along the adjacent Carmel River.

When you select a residence at Arroyo Carmel you not only live by a great lake, you also live a great new life. Experience a totally new kind of lakeside living by visiting Arroyo Carmel.

A Rare Opportunity To Enjoy the Country Beauty of Carmel Valley.

This spacious (3300 square feet) rough redwood home lies on three acres dotted with oak and olive trees. The heated 18 by 36 pool with the stimulating jacuzzi outlets will afford many hours of zestful enjoyment. The pool's patio area has two dressing rooms and is plumbed for a shower and a refrigerator-bar. There are two additional patios (one private) in the rear of the house plus one in front adjacent to the miniature forest of bamboo trees.

The interior, also in rough redwood, has beamed ceilings throughout. The oil fed radiant heating system is incorporated in the double slabbed colored concrete floor. The living room has a massive full length wall of Carmel stone and contains the imposing fireplace with raised hearth. The separate dining room with wet bar, lies between the living room and the exceptionally functional 11 by 25 kitchen with its walk-in, sliding doored cupboards, range top, double ovens, dishwasher, and disposer.

The master bedroom, a comfortable 16 by 16, with its own bath, has a large dressing area with floor to ceiling walk-in closets. There are three more bedrooms in the west wing along with the family room and the enclosed utility room. The other two bathrooms, one with sunken tub overlooking the private patio, are in this wing also. The three car carport has an abundance of closed off storage areas, one portion of which is large enough to be utilized as an activity room.

The views surrounding this magnificent nine year old $239,500 Los Ranchitos Del Carmelo home are exceptional. Truly, indoor-outdoor living at its finest, with more than ample room to entertain.

CARMEL - Charming 3 bedroom Mediterranean. South of Ocean Avenue. One block to beach.

CARMEL MEADOWS - Hard to find. Spacious 1 bedroom home. Walk to beach. Views galore.

Harvest Fair

Once again, that time is here —

The happy harvest time of year.

We've made so many good things to sell:

Cakes, pies, jellies, candies as well;

Toys and dolls and kitchen pleasures;

Linens, pillows and other treasures.

Come on Friday, November 16

Or on Saturday, November 17

Both days from ten to four.

The Great Rate Race of 1973

7.50% = 7.79%

... when compounded daily and maintained for one year. This new, higher-than-ever rate at NCS is now available on 4 year accounts with a minimum balance of only $1,000.

And that's not the only choice.

There is a 30 month, $1,000 certificate paying 6.75% annually, compounded daily ... or a 12 month certificate for $1,000 at 6.50% ... even a 90 day account with no minimum balance that pays 5.75% annual interest plus compounding.

And don't forget the old standby, The Passbook. It's still a favorite, offering 5.25% with daily compounding and total flexibility.

No question about it. This is one race you're going to win!

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from any certificate.
